Did you ever read Shakespeare

Perhaps Cardinal Wolsey's famous speech from King Henry VIII Act III, Scene ii. Does part of it sound familiar?

Farewell! A long farewell, to all my greatness!
This is the state of man: today he puts forth
The tender leaves of hope; to-morrow blossoms,
And bears his blushing honors thick upon him;
The third day comes a frost, a killing frost,
And when he thinks, good easy man, full surely
His greatness is a-ripening, nips his root,
And then he falls as I done. I have ventured,
Like little wanton boys that swim on bladders,
... my high-blown pride
At length broke under me, and now has left me,
Weary and old with service, to the mercy
Of a rude stream that must forever hide me.

And when he falls, he falls like Lucifer,
Never to hope again.

"We've heard that a million monkeys at a million keyboards could produce the complete works of Shakespeare; now, thanks to the Internet, we know that this is not true."

— Robert Wilensky, University of California

Words from an old 19th century ritual proving that there are changes in Masonry:

I now present you with the working tools of a Master Mason. They are the Sterett, Plum and Compasses.

The Sterret is an implement which acts on a center point, whence a line is drawn to mark out ground for the foundation of the intended structure; with the Plum the skilful artist delineates the building in a draft or plan, for the instruction of the workmen; the Compasses enable him with accuracy and precision to ascertain and determine the limit and proportions of its several parts.

But we are not all operative Masons, but rather free and accepted, or speculative, we apply these tools to our morals. In this sense the Sterret points out the straight and undeviating line of conduct laid down for our pursuit in the Volume of the Sacred Law; the Plum teaches us that our words and actions are observed and recorded by the Almighty Architect, to whom we must give account of our conduct through life; the Compasses remind us of his unerring and impartial justice, Who, having defined for our instructions the limits of good and evil, will reward or punish, as we have obeyed or disregarded His Devine commands. Thus the Working Tools of a Master Mason teach us to bear in mind, and act according to the laws of our Divine Creator, that when we shall be summoned from this sublunary abode, we may ascend to the Grand Lodge above, where the world's great Architect lives and reigns forever.

Daylight's real prima donna, Carla Hilderbrand, the wife of the W.: Brother Andy Anderson will be featured in the lead role of Lady Sophy in the Seattle Gilbert & Sullivan Society's production of Utopia Limited. It will be presented the at the Bagley Wright Theater at the Seattle Center later this month.

Don't ask for a plot description, just come see the show. Another lodge theater party is planned for July 24th. Contact Brother Morgan for more details or tickets. W.: Brother Andy announced at the June 27th meeting that he and Carla are expecting to add another performer to the family in January.

SYSO, The Seattle Youth Symphony Orchestras has been selected as one of the recipients of the Seattle Mayor's 2009 Arts Awards. Daylight submitted the organization's name for consideration early in the spring. It is a pleasure to see that an organization that Daylight has supported in some small measure since 1973 has been recognized as an important part of Seattle's arts and cultural life.

Last year the Wallace Foundation, a national foundation established by the founders of the Readers Digest gave SYSO a quarter of million dollar grant in recognition of their several different educational programs.

There are three Daylight brothers serving as Board Trustees, James Maher [Board Secretary], Dean Willard and Sat Tashiro [Board Treasurer].

The award will be presented by the Mayor at Bumbershoot on Friday, September 4th at a special ceremony at the Seattle Center.
